

Green Bay Press-Gazette

★ SATURDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1998 50 CENTS

Bradley begins run for president

Former U.S. Sen. and basketball star Bill Bradley took his first step Friday toward challenging Al Gore for the Democratic presidential nomination. A-5

BIG WEEKEND ON THE GRIDIRON

Tennessee quarterback Tim Lincecum is aiming to take the Volunteers to the Fiesta Bowl for a chance at the national championship.

Three teams aim for Fiesta Bowl

Today, the three top-ranked college teams play with two spots up for grabs in the Fiesta Bowl, which will host the national championship game.

Vikings can lock up the division

On Sunday, the home Vikings will host the Packers in a game that could determine the NFC Central Division champion.

Prime-time battle Monday

Monday night is the battle of the top two in the Packers' division as they travel to Tampa Bay to play the Buccaneers.

Brooks likely to play Monday, while Freeman's status still unknown, C-1

Brooks is expected to play Monday night, while Freeman's status remains uncertain.

New city transit center in the works

The federal government would fund 80 percent of the cost of the transit center, with the city responsible for the rest.

The study evaluated traffic, transit and other possible effects of putting the transit garage on the University Avenue land.

The $1.5 million project cost includes money to buy the land, move the transit garage from South Washington Street and build a new transit center.

The University Avenue project is the best property from an operating standpoint and the cheapest property we're going to find, because it's a clear site.

Proposed transit center

Green Bay Transit plans to cover the transit garage to land on University Avenue, where a new transit center is planned.

Keller has technological edge, but too few students

Tommy Winters, a computer resource teacher at Keller Elementary School, explains how to save material on a computer to second graders Thursday. The school's emphasis on technology hasn't resulted in increased enrollment.

Articles to impeach drafted

GOP prepares charges; time for defense sought

WASHINGTON — House Republicans are drafting articles of impeachment to charge President Clinton with obstruction of justice.

Location and lack of marketing blamed

The message didn't feel quite right under Keller's third grade head and he was quick to point out to his teachers.

Technology plan difficult to implement, A-2

Boy's only school emphasizing technology Keller hasn't seen enrollment rise — at least partly due to the school's location and lack of marketing.

Judge grants permission to ship Fox silt

OSHDORF — The state rejected permission Friday night to ship PCB-contaminated sediment from the Fox River to a Wisconsin County landfill after reaching agreement with municipal officials who questioned the project.

Judge grants permission to ship Fox silt

The state Department of Natural Resources had said blocking the shipments would add $1 million to the $10 million project.

WEATHER 54 49

INDEX table with categories like Classified, Sports, etc.

Potawatomi gaming compact richest so far in Wisconsin

MADISON — The state and the Forest County Potawatomi Indian Tribe signed a new gaming compact on Friday.

First Cliff state headed for gaming showdown, A-2

Menominee tribe will pay the state $100,000 for the agreement.

COMING SUNDAY TAXES & YOU School funding

New school buildings and more students are driving up the cost of public education in Brown County.