

A-2 • MONDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1999 GREEN BAY PRESS-GAZETTE

CLINTON IN CRISIS

What's next in the impeachment trial

Resigning or more CST today House prosecutors and President Clinton's attorneys were to make their closing arguments, with three hours available for each side.

Senators call for investigation of aide

Blumenthal testimony questioned

WASHINGTON — Several Democratic and Republican senators demanded Sunday that the Justice Department investigate whether an aide to President Clinton committed perjury by denying he spread a story that Monica Lewinsky was a lesbian.

House impeachment managers... Blumenthal's lawyer, William McDonald, issued a statement...

Byrd says acquittal may be best for nation

Byrd says acquittal may be best for nation

WASHINGTON — Sen. Robert Byrd said Sunday that he believes President Clinton probably committed perjury but that he would support an acquittal.

people and that there are indications that he did indeed, commit perjury.

him for these reasons... Only last month, Byrd widely...

Fields/Risk, costs worry developers successful business. The project is Village Farms of Buffalo — an Indian independent...

From A-1

Other developers... The search for a major industrial developer, though, would be a difficult one.

The 15-acre piece of former industrial land is called a brownfield...

Goldberg: Game show gig is good for her

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Whoopi Goldberg doesn't want to hear trash talk from people who think her being 'Whoopi Goldberg' is a bad thing.

Correction policy... The Press-Gazette copies factual errors promptly and courteously...

Library materials on river, mine stacking up

By Brian Campbell

IF that isn't enough, pick up one of 28 bound volumes describing jobs on the Fox River and the Oneida mine.

And even more is on the way. The state Department of Natural Resources later this month will send boxes of studies addressing the extent and sources of chemical contamination in the Fox River.

around the state because of the unusually strong public interest in both issues.

EPA/Some say cleanup could cost jobs

From A-1

state fish and wildlife that remove people out of wet certain fairly fish that are likely to contain acceptably high levels of PCBs in their tissue.

"I believe the effect on public health caused by a substantial rise in contamination in the area would be considerable."

But to humans. The only technical comments on the EPA's screening of the site — a move that is based on criteria such as the amount and toxicity of the contamination and its

Press-Gazette

Subscription and advertising information for the Press-Gazette, including contact details and rates.